MAN WANTED IN OGDEN CAPTURED

L. N. Sparks is wanted in Ogden for alleged forgeries and it is a certainty that he will soon be behind the bars in the city jail. He is under arrest at Pocatello, Idaho, and will be held there until an Ogden officer reaches that city and takes him into custody.

A complaint charging the man with forgery has been filed in Judge Murphy's court and a warrant of arrest has been placed in the hands of Detective Pender. An officer will be dispatched to the Idaho town this evening to get the man. It is said that Sparks is willing to return to Ogden without requisition papers from the governor.

The complaint alleges that on May 16th of this year Sparks forged the name of William Craig to a check drawn on the Utah National bank for $5. It is stated by the officers that there are other forgery cases that can be placed against the man if necessary.

Sparks operated mostly in the Five Points district, most of his victims coming from that locality.

Workmen at Devil's Slide Cement Plant Uncover the Site of the Powder Tunnel, But Fail to Find Even a Fragment of Any One of the Seventeen Men Killed by the Explosion

On the first day of June, this year, a terrific explosion took place in a tunnel leading into the face of the mountain on the rocky, Devil's Slide, near Ogden, in Weber canyon, where the Union Portland Cement company of this city was blasting rock to be used in the cement works of the company. On that fateful day seventeen men were blown into eternity. Twelve human feet were found outside the tunnel immediately after the explosion, indicating that at least six of the men engaged in the blasting had been blown like a cannonball from the tunnel.

Since that time the cement company has kept at work from fifty to seventy-five men with a steam shovel in an effort to exhume the remaining eleven men, supposed to be entombed beneath the great mass of rock that had fallen with the explosion, that their bodies might be delivered to friends, and, perchance, relatives, for burial. During that time the work of the faithful quarrymen has been incessant and untiring, it being expected at nearly every moment that some unfortunate body would be unearthed and carried away for identification.

The hope, however, was vain, for no such body was found.

The end of the tunnel was reached a few days ago, but not a vestige of a human body was found. Not even a trace could be discovered.

It was found that only one chamber of powder had been exploded, and that another chamber, or cache, was intact, the powder being in the same condition as when it was placed. The chamber containing the powder that was exploded was expanded from dimensions of 8 feet square to 12 feet by 20 feet, proving the great pressure that was brought to bear upon that chamber of solid rock. It would be impossible for a single particle of a man's body to remain intact under such conditions, say the officers of the cement company.

Some of the bodies may have been blown part way out of the tunnel or they may all have been completely consumed in the powder chamber. This is a secret of that mountain tunnel that will be forever withheld.

All evidence that would lead to a conclusion as to the cause of the explosion was caused through something having gone wrong with the electric wiring of the workings, or whether one of the quarrymen inadvertently dropped a match into the powder.

The men killed were Hugh Maguire, foreman, an American, and resident of Bingham, Utah; Frank Coney, George Catoloni, B. Catoloni, S. De Burado, S. Nokolich, F. Nakamura, F. Gjulich, M. Guessop, D. Cam-bolohi, F. Begovic, P. Stojovic, P. Shenvic, A. Ishli, M. Svlar, B. Kromavic and P. Petreff. All the victims of the disaster, so far as known, except one, were single men and under middle age. They were foreigners, except Maguire, and are not known to have relatives in this country.

As soon as the work of removing the rock from the tunnel was completed, the coroner's jury, under the direction of justice of the peace E. A. Wilde of Croysden, Morgan county, made its investigations and arrived at a verdict, which was as follows:

"We, the jurors called to investigate the killing of seventeen men at the tunnel of the Union Portland Cement company at Devil's Slide, have held an inquest over portions of the remains of seventeen bodies and we find that they came to their deaths by a premature explosion of powder at Devil's Slide, Utah, June 1st, 1910, and the names given are the true names of the men killed therein; and the Union Portland Cement company is hereby exonerated from all blame."

WATER NOT FROM THE OLD RESERVOIR

City Drawing Its Supply From the New Reservoir Which is Fed by the Purest Mountain Streams in the Country—Old Reservoir Out of Use Until It Can Be Cemented.

A short time ago the water of the city mains was rather murky and had a peculiar taste. This led to considerable speculation as to the cause. Some all sorts of things in the bottom of the old reservoir and the water mains draining the dregs. Such ideas even reached the columns of some of the newspapers and there was much ado about it.

Superintendent Kircher stated this morning that he desires the people of Ogden to understand the exact status of affairs regarding the water supply. He says the old reservoir was completely drained something over two weeks ago and that since that time the water for the city has been taken from the new reservoir, which is cemented on all sides, and on the bottom, there being no cleaner receptacle for water in the world. This reservoir now contains 9,000,000 gallons of pure water, 3,000,000 gallons more than the old reservoir ever did, or could possibly hold. The water supply is considered ample for all purposes. There is not a drop of water coming from the old reservoir which is almost dry enough to begin the work of removing the earth on the floor, preparatory to cementing, which will likely be done this fall.

A short time ago there was a water-spout in Wheeler canyon, from whence water for the waterworks system is being drawn. This caused a slight discoloring of the water for a few hours, but the canyon stream is so free from any form of contamination that the water coming into the system is not polluted in the least. This discoloring of the water, says Mr. Kircher, is what caused the scare among the people.

In making the connection between the regular water main leading to the old reservoir and the new basin, a number of feet of wood pipe, 10 inches in diameter, had to be used, and it being covered with lumber, the water passing through it for the first few hours absorbed a slight lumber odor. This was the "taste" in the water that caused many people to conjecture as to what kind of foreign matter was in the water. It was simply a little pure pine tincture that caused the alarm.

The superintendent states that the water used in the city system today is taken from the Wheeler canyon stream, Coldwater canyon and Warm Springs canyon, the three sources of supply being the purest, according to chemical tests, of any water system in the world.

There is not a drop of water being turned into the system from the main channel of the Ogden river, and it will not be necessary to take any from that source. There is plenty of water in the new reservoir for the purposes of the city and, now that the dry season is practically over, the supply will increase, rather than diminish. It is anticipated that the old reservoir will be cemented this fall and that the city will then have 20,000,000 gallons of as good water as ever passed through a water main. The new reservoir holds 13,000,000 gallons and the old one, when remodeled, will hold 7,000,000 gallons.

MAN 78 IS TO MARRY GIRL 22.

Chicago, August 8.—A romance of youth and old age was disclosed yesterday with the formal announcement that Rev. Herrick Johnson, 78 years old, professor emeritus of McCormick Theological seminary of Chicago, and a former president of that institution, is to wed Miss Margaret Duncan, 22 years old, a society woman of Louisville.

The announcement of the engagement was made by Mrs. Herrick J. Gray of St. Louis, a sister of Mr. Johnson, and with whom he has been living. Details have not yet been announced. Rev. Mr. Johnson's wife died about four years ago. He is widely known in the Presbyterian church, and was moderator of the general assembly. Dr. Johnson and Miss Duncan met a year ago at Atlantic City.

HERRERA MAY MEET HYLAND

W. E. Terry stated last night that he had just received a letter from Aurella Herrera, "the Greaser," stating that he would take on Dick Hyland at any money in Ogden. The little Mexican now weighs but 134 1/2 lbs. and up to his last fight with Hyland at Bakersfield. In his last fight he did not feel the necessity for training and went into the ring with a "front" that resembled a miniature John L. Sullivan.

Herrera owns a saloon and other property in Bakersfield, California, and up to his last fight with Hyland has been acting as an advertisement and star customer for his business.

His utter failure to make a showing with the shifty youngster evidently cheered him in the way and he has now "come back" with an offer for a return match at any money. Hyland has not been located since the receipt of the Mexican's deft, but it is believed that he will favor the match.

Cleaver, manager of Terry Keller, is now in San Francisco arranging the program for his Ogden "prodigy" as soon as the latter's jaw recovers from the short-arm jolt received in his recent fight with Joe Thomas. If Terry does not fight again in Ogden, Cleaver will probably arrange a few matches for him on the coast and there is a possibility of the pair invading the east for a try at the short-distance-no-decision game.

WRECK OF A FREIGHT ON S. P.

A westbound freight train on the Southern Pacific was wrecked yesterday morning, about 10:30 o'clock, two miles east of Coble. Three refrigerator cars were derailed and traffic was blocked for three hours but no one was injured.

The wreck is believed to have been caused by the breaking of a drawbar. The accident occurred as the freight was passing the small station of Omar.

Wreck trains were at once sent to the scene of the wreck from Carlin and Montello and the main line was cleared for train passage in just three hours.

There was no great damage done to either equipment or track. Conductor Lyon was in charge of the train, but neither he nor any of the crew were on the derailed cars and were not endangered by the wreck.

LIGHT MANAGER ALWAYS CAREFUL

Danville Decker, manager of the Utah Light & Railway company made a vigorous denial last evening of the assertion that it was one of the company's trenches at Washington avenue and Twentieth street that was found to be without warning lanterns Saturday evening when a number of complaints were sent in to the police and a young lady was reported to have been injured by riding her wheel in to the trench.

"Two weeks ago I gave strict orders that not a single trench of this company should be left open over night, and the foremen have positive instructions to see that all trenches or other excavations made during the day are completed at night, even if the work has not been finished and they have to be re-excavated the next day."

"It is cheaper, I have found, to pay for a little extra labor than to pay damages for injuries received by people who inadvertently drive or ride into excavations left for the night unguarded or poorly lighted by lanterns which are liable to confuse one in passing them."

Manager Decker's experiment in excavating in asphalt paving on Washington avenue, near Twenty-second street, attracted considerable attention from the street department Saturday. It has always been maintained that the only way in which a hole through the paving could be made safely was by the usual method employed by the paving company, temporary cement or gravel filling having been found practically worthless. Sometimes it takes several months to convince a construction company that repairs are necessary.

In excavating for a gas line at the point mentioned, Mr. Decker ordered that a long rectangular block be cut bodily from the paving and carefully preserved intact. This was done, the strip measuring about 18 inches in width and eight or nine feet in length. When the work had been finished and the excavation re-filled, the block of paving was carefully put back in its original position and will now fill all requirements for many months to come or until a bit of asphalt filling can be placed in around the edges of the block to permanently repair it.

WILL KAY WILL MAKE A DEFENSE

"Bill" Jones failed to appear this morning and defend himself against the charge of driving an automobile faster than six miles an hour over a street intersection of the city, and his bail of $10 was forfeited.

The clerk announced that Will Kay was the defendant in the case and that it was stated yesterday that his attorney desired to go to trial, to which the court replied that if Mr. Kay desired to have the case tried later, an order rescinding the order forfeiting the bail could be made.

DEATHS AND FUNERALS

THOMAS PLYER.

The funeral of Thomas Plyer was held at 3:30 yesterday afternoon at the Third ward meeting house, Bishop Counsellor Elias S. King conducting the services.

Musical was furnished by the ward choir and the following who contributed solos: Duett, "Oh, My Father," Bessie and Sarah Williams; "Abide With Me," Miss Lillian Faust; "The Holy City," Miss Lucille Wellman; "Face to Face," Miss Fern Farr; duett, "Sometime We'll Understand," Sarah and Bessie Williams.

The speakers were Bishop James Ward, John Seaman and Bishop C. E. Peterson, all of whom spoke highly of the deceased and expressed words of encouragement and sympathy for the bereaved ones.

There was a large attendance and many beautiful flowers were in evi-lence. Interment was in Ogden City cemetery.

BERNARD KEARNEY.

The funeral of Bernard, the little son of Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Kearney, 611 Twenty-first street, was held at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon at the residence. Rev. J. E. Carver of the Presbyterian church conducted the services and preached the funeral sermon.

Mrs. Maule Harrington Stevens sang two solos, "Jesus Lover of My Soul," and "Softly and Tenderly Jesus is Calling."

There was a large attendance and a profusion of floral tributes from relatives and friends of the family. Interment was in Ogden City cemetery.

DRUNKS AND VAGS IN POLICE COURT

William King acknowledged that he was "unlawfully drunk," August 6, and the court sentenced him to pay a fine of $5 or serve five days in the city jail at hard labor.

Yesterday Ed Jaspersen deposited bail for his appearance to answer the charge of vagrancy, but he was not in court this morning. His bail was declared forfeited.

A. N. Austin stated that he was drunk, August 7. The court sentenced him to serve five days in the city jail at hard labor or pay a fine of $5.

Mike Riley was again in court and he pleaded guilty to vagrancy. He was sentenced to serve another ten days in jail. Louis Browning was arrested at the same time Mike was taken in and was charged with the same offense, but he pleaded not guilty. His trial was set for tomorrow morning and his bail fixed at $10.

J. A. Chapman failed to appear and answer the charge of vagrancy and his bail of $10 was forfeited. It was alleged that Chapman conducted himself as a vagrant, August 7th.

LULA DESIRES TO LEAVE THE CITY

"Why don't you let me go, Judge? Is that the way you treat people?" said Lula Brown, a colored woman, in police court this morning. "I have money this morning and if you will let me, I will go to Salt Lake and get work. I don't see why you want to keep me in jail when I am prepared to work, or pay for my board and lodging."

Lula was charged with vagrancy, she pleading guilty. The court ordered that she pay a fine of $10, or serve ten days in the city basile. The woman has been in the city jail most of the time during the past two months.

Pat Doran pleaded guilty to the charge of vagrancy, but the court stated that, before passing sentence, he would confer with Chief Browning regarding the man's condition. The defendant stated to the court that he had just left the hospital and was in a weakened condition. Pat looked into custody, was charged with the same offense, furnishing bail in the sum of $5 for his appearance in court this morning. He failed to appear, though, and his bail was declared forfeited.

E. J. Welch and George E. Riley were arraigned on the charge of vagrancy and entered pleas of not guilty. The witnesses for the city not being on hand, the matter was continued until tomorrow morning. Bonds for the defendants were fixed at $10 each. Charles Johnson, who was arrested at the time Welch and Riley were taken into custody, was charged with the same offense, furnishing bail in the sum of $5 for his appearance in court this morning. He failed to appear, though, and his bail was declared forfeited.

FACES SERIOUS CRIMINAL CHARGE

Two complaints were filed today against a Twenty-fifth street second-hand dealer, one charge being that of doing business without a license, and the other, receiving stolen goods. Myers, the man who confessed to Detective Pender and Patrolman Kellner and Mohlman Saturday afternoon that he had stolen three pieces of silverware valued at $25, was afterward induced to tell where he had disposed of the loot.

Myers informed the officers that he had sold the silverware for a dollar but when the dealer was approached on the subject he denied all knowledge of Myers or silverware of any description.

After a consultation Myers was taken down to the store where he was charged the dealer with having bought the goods from him for a dollar. Even then the latter denied the charge but later weakened in the matter and admitted that he had taken the silverware to his home. He was compelled to go after it at once, which he did, delivering a sugar bowl, cream pitcher and spoon holder to the officers without further trouble.

Second-hand dealers are obliged to keep a record of articles purchased and the same must be reported daily to the chief of police. The dealer in question, however, provoked the police by his persistent denials that he had the goods purchased from Myers and they are determined to make an example of him for his own good as well as for the benefit of others who are possibly unaware of the gravity of buying stolen property.

Kentucky, 77; North Carolina, 74; Virginia, 85; Ohio, 80; Pennsylvania, 86; Tennessee, 86; Wisconsin, 60; South Carolina, 73; Connecticut, 85; Florida, 82.

FOUR TRAINS HAUL THE CIRCUS

The Barnum & Bailey circus train passed through Ogden yesterday morning for Salt Lake City. The circus showed at Rock Springs, Wyo., Saturday. The circus train was in four sections.

The shows are giving a performance today in Salt Lake City. They will show in Provo tomorrow and in Ogden Wednesday.

The Barnum & Bailey shows are now under the management of the Ringling brothers, the circus kings of the world. J. Ringling, who is managing the circus, passed through Ogden this morning in his private car, Wisconsin, on train No. 2, of the Oregon Short Line, going to Salt Lake City. The Ringling brothers are believed to be in control of every circus at the present time that is showing in the United States.

Clever Clowns.

Barnum & Bailey are carrying an army of clever clowns. The mission of the clown is highly estimable. He is the materialization of merriment, and as essential to the circus as the beautiful horses, the riders, and all else which goes to make up the tented performance of today. The circus contains much of instruction and interest, but it must have fun also, and the clowns are depended upon to keep up interminable hilarity. What would the children do at a clownless circus? The older folks appreciate the dexterity and skill of the riders, of the acrobats, but the youngsters will turn away from the most wonderful feats of skill, strength and agility to watch the funny antics of the clown.

The clown has kept pace with the progress in other directions. He has evolved and is still evolving. Time was when one clown sufficed for a circus; when an enterprising manager engaged four clowns, the fact was emblazoned in big letters on the bills as a great feature of the show.

Four clowns in the big three-ring tent of today would be lost. The Barnum and Bailey Greatest Show on Earth, which comes to Ogden Wednesday, has fifty clowns.

The modern clown's motley program covers a variety of accomplishments. He must not only be a grimacer and jester, but an acrobatic jumper, a rider, a knockabout comedian, and what not. In Barnum and Bailey's Circus the large companies of clowns are so divided into squads of three, four and five as to be performing in view of all parts of the audience at the same time. All do not wear the white painted face, streaked with red and black, and the regulation dotted white costume. Some are rigged up as clowns, some as policemen, others wear long skirts, others the abbreviated skirts of the ballet dancer, others still dress as overgrown boys, others as dudes in an exaggerated type, and so on through a constantly changing list. Still others appear in the form of animals.

The modern clown must not only make fun in the intermissions, as formerly, but while much of the performance is going on. The clown who falls to turn a somersault in the air, but lands on the back of his neck, and then turns over, is really doing a more difficult and dangerous feat. If he failed to land exactly right he would probably break his neck.

The clown may do clever and difficult feats—even dangerous ones—but they must be done in a burlesque and grotesque way. His mission is to keep the crowd in a good humor, and only the discerning give him full credit for his skill and agility.

CARD OF THANKS.

To the many kind friends who so willingly and tenderly assisted us during the sickness and demise of our beloved little daughter, Frances Edith, we wish to extend our most hearty thanks especially to the speakers and singers at the funeral. May you like and be tenderly remembered in your hour of sorrow.

MR. AND MRS. WM. F. OGLETREE

REV. BROWN SEES NATIONAL CRISIS

William Thurston Brown, former pastor of the Unitarian church in this city, and the principal speaker at a Socialist meeting in Liberty park, in Salt Lake Sunday afternoon, declared that this country was facing a great crisis. If the struggle between the capitalists and the wage slaves is not settled peaceably, said he, it will mean another civil war.

During the course of his address Mr. Brown quoted extensively from Abraham Lincoln's writings in an attempt to show that the great emancipator sensed the importance of the conflict between capital and labor. Mr. Brown said in part:

"Great problems are facing this country which must be solved. As labor is the creator of all wealth it is entitled to all that it creates, declares a Socialist writer. If this statement were made by Socialists in Salt Lake City the capitalist papers would take up the matter and make fun of the statement. Lincoln was aware of the evil influences of capital during the first year of the civil war. This is evident from one of his messages. He saw that the regular institutions never were so at stake. There was an attempt at that time by the capitalist class to hold up the government on contracts for supplies to be furnished the army."

An Irrepressible Conflict.

"There is an irrepressible conflict on at the present time. Such a conflict was on prior to the French revolution. While there were a few brave spirits making speeches and writing articles against slavery, early as 1835, no one at that time sensed that a great struggle was coming. You would hardly think it possible that people could live during those days and not see that one of the greatest crises of history was impending. Lincoln declared that 'no nation can permanently endure, half slave and half free.' Society today is facing the same irrepressible conflict that was faced seventy-five or a hundred years ago. The wage slave today is just as much a slave as ever the colored man in the south was; he is no more master of his fate than was the negro."

All the instruments of production and distribution are being centered under the single control and ownership of the capitalist class, and just this far, that it indicates that on the other side you have a class of slaves. The only people that are aware of the great crisis that fronts us today are the workmen who have acquainted themselves with conditions. How many of our lawyers, and politicians are aware that wage slavery exists?"

Problem of Children.

"Another problem that confronts the country is that of child labor. This is one of the things that must be solved. The conflict that is on never can be settled until there is an emancipation of the wage slaves. 'Bye and bye, there will be no foreign market. Foreign countries are manufacturing the goods we used to send to them. The curtailing of our foreign markets will result in paucity becoming more common and frequent in the future than they have been in the past. It means another civil war unless we can affect a peaceable solution of this question."

"Organized labor will never cease to make demands for higher wages and shorter hours until it gets the full product of its toil. The cost of living will cause the elimination of the middle man in the near future, and then there will be the most tremendous uprising against capitalism that we have ever had. The only thing for workmen to do is to unite with other workmen, both economically and politically. The only party open to them is the Socialist party. There will be no ceasing of the struggle until the government of the capitalists by the capitalists, and for the capitalists, is done away with and is superseded by the government of the workmen, by the workmen and for the workmen."

NOTICE.

Old and new delegates to Ogden Trades and Labor Assembly and officers of all local labor organizations are cordially invited and earnestly requested to attend meeting in Labor Hall Mon. Aug. 8, at 8 p. m. Speaking, music, refreshments. H. White, Jr., Sec.
